

Group 3

Guiding Question:

"What policies should be implemented to address climate justice and economic inequality, ensuring that vulnerable communities are protected while promoting sustainable economic growth?"

Debate Topic:

The role-play will simulate an international summit where representatives from various sectors discuss and propose policies to address the intersection of climate justice and economic inequality. The focus will be on ensuring that climate policies are equitable and do not disproportionately burden vulnerable communities.

Roles:

Climate Justice Advocate:

Highlight climate impacts on marginalized communities, advocate for fair resource distribution and inclusive decision-making, and propose equitable policies.

Economist:

Analyze financial implications of climate policies, discuss economic trade-offs and funding mechanisms, and ensure initiatives don't overburden the economy.

Policymaker:

Balance economic development with environmental protection, propose integrated policies, and highlight successful initiatives and legislative measures.

Representative from Developing Nations:

Argue for fair resource distribution and support, highlight unique climate challenges, and advocate for international cooperation and financial aid.

Moderator:

Facilitate discussion, ensure equal participation, guide debate toward solutions, and summarise key points and proposed policies.
